

CARA DELEVINGNE'S MAUVE SMOKY EYE

Too scared to do a full-on smoky eye? Then this softer, coloured version could be the answer. Make like Cara and choose a purple-based look to keep it sultry. Layering is key, so an eyeshadow palette with several shades of the same colour works best. First, apply a light hue all over your lid, as this will act as a base for the darker colours to sit on top of. Using a pencil brush, draw a "C" shape into the corner of your eyes with the darkest shade, before blending outwards and along the lower lashes. Next, use a mid-toned hue in the centre of the lids and combine all of the colours together. A touch of mascara and kohl will complete the look. Apply pencil liner along the waterline and smudge into upper and lower lash lines.

RITA ORA'S SHIMMER GLOW

This super-flattering highlighting trend - loved by Rita - has been seen all over the catwalks. To get your glow on, look for the areas on your face where a strobe light would naturally hit, and enhance those with a warm-toned golden highlighter. Using light strokes of a fluffy eyeshadow brush, apply the product to the high points of your face, from your upper cheekbones, down the centre of your nose. Then add under your eyebrows and above your Cupid's bow.

CHLOË MORETZ'S STRUCTURED HALF-WAVE

Sexy doesn't have to mean tumbling locks as Chloë showed us with her boho waves and sophisticated quiff. "To create this style, spritz the lengths of your hair with a texturising spray and tease it straight with your fingers," says Meghan. "Once locks are 95% dry, take a hair wand and twist tiny sections around the tong in opposite directions, then run your fingers through the lengths. For the quiff, section a triangle of hair using the end of a tail comb, and backcomb it forwards, then flip it over and work into a quiff. Secure with grips and finish with a light hairspray to keep the movement."

THE A-LIST REVAMP

Stuck in a make-up rut? Take inspiration from your fave celebrities By Lauren Naylor

MARGOT ROBBIE'S MERMAID BRAID

For an effortlessly chic style, look no further than Margot's plait. "To achieve this, dry your hair to 85%, then divide it into three sections - one on each side of your head and one at the back," says Taylor Taylor London stylist Meghan Cox. "Next, using large heated rollers, roll the side sections up to your ear, and the back section to the nape of your neck, secure them and leave for 15 minutes to cool and set. Then remove the rollers, and loosely plait the hair from your shoulders to the ends. Secure with a band and spritz with hairspray."

NICOLE SCHERZINGER'S BOLD BERRY LIPS

For Nicole's power pout, prep is key. "First slather on Mac Lip Conditioner, £12," says make-up artist Rebecca Butterworth. "Then use a liner that's lighter than your lipstick to sketch in the Cupid's bow and centre of the bottom lip, before working outwards to each corner and joining up. Fill in the fleshiest part with the side of the liner to act as a primer." When choosing your lipstick colour, those with pink undertones in their skin should opt for blue-based plums. If you have yellow tones, go for raspberry hues.

Photography: Getty Images, Vantage News, Splash News, Photoshot, Stockists: Bobbi Brown (bobbirow.com), Charlotte Tilbury (charlottetilbury.com), Cynthia Rowley (cynthiarowley.com), Ego Professional (Bosch.com), GHD (GHDhair.com), Laura Mercier (lauramercier.com), Mac Cosmetics (maccosmetics.com), New Cid Cosmetics (amazon.co.uk), Rimmel London (superdrug.com), Toni & Guy (superdrug.com), Topshop (topshop.com), Zoeva (zoevacosmetics.com)